TOP 5 WALL COLORS FOR 2022

The colors in which we immerse ourselves have a direct effect on our emotions. Choosing the appropriate dining room paint color or the appropriate pop for living room paint colors may make all the difference in elevating the atmosphere of any place. For those seeking inspiration, these are the five colors and tones that will reign supreme in 2022 -

01

Gray-Greens

Gray-green is the color of the year 2022. The elegant color is a representation of the balance and harmony seen in the natural world. The color is subtle enough to be applied in a variety of ways around the house, such as a flash of color on cabinets in the kitchen or a vibrant welcome in the doorway. The light green hues provide just the right amount of liveliness to the area while complementing the natural surroundings. Warmer greens, such as Matcha Latte, are ideal for invigorating any environment with a blast of natural greenery-inspired color. If you're seeking the ideal combination of aggressiveness and adaptability, green is unquestionably the way to go. Green is a hue to keep an eye out for in the next year. Greens in various shades of light grey, sage, and emerald. Additionally, the strong use of this one hue offers an amazing backdrop for art or furnishings.

02

Earthy Tones

Gray-green is not just the organic shade that has caught our attention for the coming year. Indeed, many designers expect that greens of various undertones and colors will soar in popularity as consumers want a touch of nature in their homes. Earthy tones and nature-like leafy greens are going to be the colors of choice for 2022. Green hues ranging from sage to darker tones are on the increase. A lush hue of green will always convey the peaceful, enveloping atmosphere of the vast outdoors. Greens in lighter shades are an excellent choice for kitchen cabinets because they give a pop of color without becoming overbearing. Green evokes a sense of tranquillity and is associated with nature. Nature's relaxing impact is ideal for your house, which should be a location where you can unwind after a hard day. Dusty hues provide additional dimension, making the space comfortable, muted, and gloomy while simultaneously being light and fresh

03

Warm Neutrals

Additionally, warm, neutral paint hues are having a moment. This shade is neither pure white nor beige. Along with adding warmth and adaptability to an area, a neutral color palette may quickly transform it into a pleasant, inviting atmosphere. Neutral Territory, a sandy beige with slight red overtones, and On Point, a fresh and light beige that brightens in natural light, are two of experts' favorite neutrals. Consider a rich white for a specific location of your house, like the living room, for a hue that works with a range of décor types while providing a more welcoming ambiance. These enable a space to breathe freely, soothing our nervous systems in the same way as a snooze in mild sunshine does. Both of these hues have a reassuring and relaxing impact that dazzling whites lack

04

Orange & other vibrant colors

Bright color trends and strong patterns should be included in the house since they offer individuality to a room. This year, ditch the neutrals and experiment with alternative strong color combinations. Opt for hues that are polar opposites on the color wheel. This color scheme lends a sense of nature and a romantic feel to the area. Orange colors are an excellent option since they provide an energizing ambiance during the day and may help create a pleasant, calm environment in the evening, demonstrating the color's versatility in varied lighting. An orange entry hall is an excellent way to greet visitors to a property. It is ideal for high-activity areas of the house, such as the kitchen and dining room, where it brings vibrancy and energy. It's simpler to integrate this hue into a design if you're a little averse to bright paint in your house – and it works especially well in darker, moodier settings since it produces a sense of warmth.

05

Pink & Yellow

Pink room ideas are the new decorating neutrals; they have an innate capacity to provide warmth and appeal to a place without dominating it. However, picking the appropriate shade might be challenging when you're presented with a range of gentle rose pinks to peachy tones. The trick is to choose a tranquil color. It pairs well with most hues, but olive greens and yellows really bring it to life. Yellow room ideas that are mood-lifting and cozy infuse a place with vitality, confidence, and optimism. It may be utilized throughout the house, but is especially useful in high-traffic areas such as hallways and kitchens, as well as in rooms facing north that lack natural light. The kitchen, which is sometimes referred to as the heart of the house, is the ideal location to include stronger colors, such as yellow, which evokes the golden sun and creates an energizing design.
